

The Miller Family

Growing up, life was challenging for Sarai Miller. She is one of six children, and experienced daily struggles due to poverty. While living in Sacramento during her elementary school years, she would leave home at 5a.m. in order to commute to the suburbs for school due to the substandard educational opportunities offered near her home. There were many moves between California and Georgia over the years. Sarai's grandmother has been the most influential parental figure in her life. For this, she is forever thankful.

Sarai attended high school in Decatur, Georgia. After graduation, she attended Georgia Perimeter College and Georgia State University, where she graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Biological Science in 2015. Following this great educational accomplishment, she went on to obtain her Master's Degree in Public Health in 2018.

Sarai enjoys her position as an Installation Services Coordinator with Home Depot, where she has worked for over three years. She enjoys helping customers plan their home improvement projects.

Her daughter, Jamie is eight years old and is currently a second grader. Jamie likes school and especially loves math and reading. When not working on her studies, she enjoys gymnastics, dance, and educational games.

The family's living situation can be quite unsafe at times. Shortly after moving into their current apartment, Jamie's bicycle was stolen and later returned in devastating condition. Gunshots can be heard close by which creates a lot of fear and sleepless nights. Sarai is determined to find a healthy and safe environment for her family. Faith is an important part of her life. She prays for guidance and has faith that God will provide a way. As a result of those prayers and hard work, Sarai and Jamie will have a home to call their own with the help of Habitat for Humanity-NCG and our community partners.
